Altria has a leading portfolio of tobacco products for U.S. tobacco consumers age 21+. Our Vision is to responsibly lead the transition of adult smokers to a smoke-free future. Altria is Moving Beyond Smoking™, leading the way in moving adult smokers away from cigarettes by taking action to transition millions to potentially less harmful choices. We are seizing the opportunity to shape a better future for adult tobacco consumers, our employees, shareholders, and society.

To achieve our Vision, we are pursuing initiatives designed to promote long-term sustainability. We believe the actions we are taking are creating a different Altria – and a different tobacco landscape. We believe these actions will benefit our businesses, supply chains, trade partners, operating and grower communities and the environment. Our responsibility focus areas address the issues we believe are most important to drive this progress.

What’s in this report?

In 2021, we announced six responsibility focus areas as an output of our in-depth 2020 responsibility materiality assessment, each with associated 2025 goals. We believe these are the most important areas we can address to help us achieve our Vision and drive long-term business value. Importantly, these areas are aligned with our stakeholders’ expectations of companies broadly and tobacco companies specifically.

This report provides an overview of Altria’s commitment to Engage and Lead Responsibly across our businesses and within our industry. At Altria, we are committed to being good corporate citizens and making a positive impact where we can. This report highlights how we practice continuous learning, engage with stakeholders, and drive accountability across our businesses. It also provides examples of progress in 2022. As we move toward our 2025 goals, it outlines our focus for 2023.

Note: When used in this report, the terms “Altria”, “we”, “us”, and “our” refer to Altria Group, Inc. and its consolidated subsidiaries, unless otherwise noted.
Beyond This Report

This report is not designed to provide a comprehensive review of progress across all our responsibility focus areas. We share progress toward our focus area goals, including important metrics and data, in a series of reports and snapshots designed to meet the needs of multiple stakeholders. From Our Chief Executive Officer

Engaging and leading responsibly is critical to our Vision of Moving Beyond Smoking™ and to creating a more sustainable future. As we move from being a tobacco company to a tobacco harm reduction company, we’re guided by our adult tobacco consumers and building a robust portfolio of smoke-free products with the potential to reduce risk – one of our most urgent responsibility priorities. While we continue our journey, we know it’s critical that we listen to and address stakeholder expectations across all of our responsibility focus areas. And it’s important that we transparently report our progress and areas of opportunity. That’s why, each year, our responsibility report focuses on how we seek to engage and lead responsibly. Importantly, this report shows how we hold ourselves accountable and how our stakeholders can hold us accountable as well.

I have never been more optimistic about our future. Across our six responsibility focus areas, we have made and expect to continue making significant progress. I take great pride in our employees’ achievements and the opportunity to share them with you.

Notably:

- In 2023, we celebrate 25 years committed to preventing underage use of tobacco products – a critical public health priority. During those years, underage smoking declined by 93% from a height of 28.3% in 1997 to only 2.1% in 2022. To continue our support, we invested approximately $25 million in evidence-based prevention programs to support positive youth development reaching more than 17 million kids in 2022.

- We’ve made significant progress expanding our portfolio of smoke-free products for the millions of U.S. adult smokers seeking potentially less harmful alternatives. We now have full control of our path to achieve our Vision. In 2022, we formed a joint venture with Japan Tobacco to commercialize and market heated tobacco stick products in the U.S. Upon completion of our pending acquisition of NJOY Holdings, Inc., we will have full global ownership of FDA-authorized products in the e-vapor space. In March 2023, we unveiled new and exciting modern oral and heated tobacco capsule products in development.

- In March of 2023, we introduced 2028 Enterprise Goals to more clearly define where we are headed. They include corporate financial metrics, specific U.S. smoke-free volume and revenue targets – which are directly linked to our responsibility focus on reducing the harm of tobacco products – and our desire to move beyond the U.S. nicotine space. These goals assume the successful completion of the NJOY acquisition. Going forward, we expect to incorporate these goals into our executive compensation program.

- We are accelerating progress toward our environmental targets through investments in renewable electricity. With our first virtual power purchase agreement, energy produced by a newly operational wind farm in Texas will bring additional renewable energy to the electricity grid, contribute to positive climate action, and help us to achieve our targets ahead of schedule.

- Since setting our Inclusion and Diversity (I&D) Aiming Points in 2020, we’ve made strong progress toward building a diverse organization in which all employees feel included, seen and heard. As of December 2022, we have achieved several of our I&D Aiming Points and remain committed to continued progress.

For tobacco harm reduction to succeed, we must continue to actively engage with external stakeholders, the FDA, and policymakers to advocate for policies that promote harm reduction and include the opinions of adult smokers in the discussion. We are focused on these key areas:

- We continue to encourage the FDA to make more and faster progress for the benefit of adult tobacco consumers. That means authorizing reduced-risk product applications in a reasonable timeframe and exercising appropriate enforcement actions for manufacturers that fail to comply with regulations.

- We need to educate adult smokers about the relative risks of various tobacco products and the benefits of switching to smoke-free alternatives. We believe tobacco consumers deserve this information and regulators have a duty to provide it.

- For harm reduction to become a reality, we believe policymakers – including the FDA – have to say “no” to calls for prohibition-based policies – like broad-based flavor bans – that will send us in the wrong direction. We have seen that prohibition does not work in other contexts and that it creates unregulated markets with negative unintended consequences.

Change won’t happen overnight, but we will continue to do our part by leading responsibly. That means demonstrating through our actions that we are investing in addressing the issues people care about the most. Through our commitment to Moving Beyond Smoking™ and engaging and leading responsibly, I believe we can deliver for adult tobacco consumers, our investors and society over the long term. I take great pride in the progress our employees make every day across our six responsibility focus areas. Thank you for taking time to read this report.

From Our Chief Sustainability Officer

Each year, I feel privileged to write this letter. It is an important time of reflection for me, about how far we’ve come, what we’ve learned and where we’re headed – in the context of what matters most to our business, our stakeholders and the impact we have outside our walls.

The atmosphere around corporate responsibility, sustainability and ESG carries a different energy these days. There is a debate underway around the value of a company’s investment of time and resources toward these efforts. Some believe it’s a distraction from a company’s obligation to return value to shareholders. I believe – done thoughtfully and with pragmatism – it is the path to increasing shareholder value and business sustainability over the long term. And this is the path Altria is pursuing.

Throughout our decades-long commitment to responsibility, we’ve strategically managed the risks we face – primarily, reducing the harm of tobacco use and preventing underage use. This year, we celebrate 25 years of commitment to preventing underage tobacco use. In 1998, Philip Morris USA (PM USA) established a Youth Smoking Prevention department. As our business evolved, we expanded our focus to helping prevent underage use of all tobacco products. And today, with investments outside of tobacco, we take an even broader view – helping to prevent underage use of products intended for adults 21+. These years have shaped my belief in the fundamental practice of “corporate responsibility” – what we do is important, how we do it matters just as much.

We’re preserving our “license to operate” and driving progress in the areas where our companies can have the greatest positive impact. We remain focused on the ESG topics important to our investors while also keeping pace with other important stakeholders’ evolving expectations of us as a corporate citizen.

I firmly believe we are focused in the right areas to achieve our Vision. In his CEO letter, Billy shared his immense pride in our progress. I echo his sentiments. And we have more to do – expectations continue evolving and the bar is rising. We’ve also experienced setbacks along the way. So, as we approach the halfway point toward our 2021–2025 responsibility goals, we’re taking stock, learning and adapting.

• We’ve strengthened our responsibility governance structure and processes to drive focus, faster progress and greater accountability. Our Board of Directors has assigned accountability to its committees to oversee different bodies of work, and expects to receive regular updates throughout the year. Altria’s executive leadership team provides centralized oversight of our ESG-aligned strategies and initiatives. Steering committees for each focus area provide oversight of progress toward our 2025 goals. We also continue to evolve our approach to best meet the needs of the business. For example, this year, we formed two new steering committees in response to emerging environmental regulations.

• The need for employee upskilling and connection to this work has never been more apparent. In 2022, we launched an employee training course – “Tying it All Together: Corporate Responsibility, ESG and You.” In the coming years, we’ll expand upon this training and offer other opportunities to build responsibility knowledge and skills across the enterprise.

• We’re also working to further integrate responsibility considerations into critical enterprise systems and processes. For example, we’re working with our colleagues to formally integrate environmental considerations into the product and packaging development process – as we’ve done with underage use prevention and tobacco harm reduction for many years. We continue to learn the best ways to improve this infrastructure and formalize this type of integration across other areas.

• We’ve had some big wins in the environmental space, particularly in our journey toward 100% renewable electricity. But we’ve also had slowdowns, as changes in the regulatory environment and a rapidly rising bar set by the Science Based Targets initiative and others, have led us to reassess priorities. In particular, U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission’s (SEC) proposed rule on climate-related disclosures and various states’ extended producer responsibility legislation that arose in 2022 influenced us to pause some initiatives so we could evaluate the potential impact of future regulations on our plans.

• Earlier this year, we announced that we will conduct an equity and civil rights assessment in response to a 2022 shareholder proposal receiving support from a majority of our shareholders at our Annual Meeting of Shareholders. The proposal recommended Altria commission a civil rights equity audit. We believe the assessment will identify opportunities to accelerate progress toward our 2025 Corporate Responsibility focus area goals, enhance stakeholder alignment and promote transparency. Our experience has taught us the value of this type of engagement, and we desire to create business and social value through the assessment.

• We also continue to improve how we communicate with our stakeholders. In response to feedback, we’ve simplified our responsibility reporting, clarified several of our 2025 responsibility goals, and communicated new enterprise goals to track and communicate progress toward our Vision.

Over the past few years, we’ve worked to increase the visibility, prioritization, and integration of responsibility initiatives across the organization. Today, our business is better aligned to drive progress, faster. And we continue to listen and learn – for ways to enhance our programs, optimize our infrastructure, maximize value for our stakeholders and our long-term success, and best meet the rising bar of expectations.

Twenty-five years has given us the gift of lessons learned that can only come with time and experience – success, mistakes, reflection and a commitment to do better. In only a few, short years of driving progress toward our 2025 responsibility focus area goals, I am overwhelmingly proud of our colleagues and the progress we’ve made. I look forward to learning, growing and improving, together, with each passing year.

Our Approach

We approach responsibility by 1) seeking to understand stakeholders’ perspectives and evolving expectations, 2) aligning our business practices – strategically and pragmatically, and 3) measuring and transparently communicating our progress. Through this approach we foster positive relationships with stakeholders through meaningful engagement; understand the changing external landscape – through regulatory and societal lenses; and determine where we need to focus in order to drive long-term value – by mitigating risks and capitalizing on opportunities for our businesses.

Understanding Stakeholders’ Perspectives Stakeholder engagement underlies our approach to effective responsibility progress. Two-way dialogue, based on open and honest communication, helps us understand the issues that present risks and opportunities for our businesses. Through their daily work, employees across the enterprise regularly engage with a wide variety of stakeholders to inform our businesses’ strategies, initiatives and approaches. This includes talking with our employees, consumers, investors, suppliers, policymakers, regulators, trade partners and community leaders.

Aligning Business Practices Our businesses implement long-term strategies and annual initiatives aligned to our Vision and responsibility focus areas. To continually improve, they regularly evaluate their strategies against enterprise direction in support of our Vision, as well as other factors like the regulatory and legislative landscape and evolving stakeholder expectations.

Measuring and Communicating Progress As responsible corporate citizens, we understand the importance of clearly communicating where we’re focused and how we’re doing. We do so through one-to-one discussions, meetings, webcasts, conferences, our website and other communications, including this report. Additionally, we align our reporting with the GRI, SASB and Task Force on Climate-related Financial Disclosure (TCFD) frameworks and respond to surveys like CDP.
Where We're Focused

Altria’s focus areas and initiatives are rooted in our responsibility materiality assessment process—a comprehensive, formal approach to identify the most impactful ESG issues that we believe promote long-term sustainability and success. In 2020, we executed this assessment—conducting a comprehensive review of stakeholder expectations and determining how those align with our business priorities. Through this exercise, we established Altria’s responsibility focus areas, as well as goals and metrics within each that have guided our actions.

At Altria, we engage with stakeholders to accelerate progress on environmental and social issues that are relevant to our businesses and where we can have the strongest impact. We evolve and adapt to changing consumer interests, marketplace forces and societal expectations. Our value chain relationships play important roles in delivering premium brands to adult tobacco consumers – from sourcing high-quality tobacco, other materials and services for our operating companies’ products, to manufacturing, distributing, and selling our products through reputable channels to qualified adult tobacco consumers. This includes two-way dialogue with consumers, employees, investors, suppliers, trade partners, regulators, policymakers and community leaders. Regular engagement helps us understand the issues that present risks and opportunities for our businesses.

For example, in response to the approval of a shareholder proposal at our 2022 Annual Meeting of Shareholders, we will conduct an equity and civil rights assessment. In the second half of 2022, we contacted our top 30 shareholders – representing approximately 43% of our outstanding shares – to seek their views concerning the requested civil rights equity audit and our proposed approach to conducting the assessment. We believe the assessment will identify opportunities to accelerate progress toward our 2025 Corporate Responsibility focus area goals, enhance stakeholder alignment and promote transparency.

The following pages outline the importance of why we engage with each of these groups and examples of how we conduct those engagements.

How We Lead

Altria’s CEO and senior management oversee our responsibility efforts. We engage with our Board on ESG strategies and issues at the Board level and through various committees. The Nominating, Corporate Governance and Social Responsibility (NCGSR) Committee oversees our public affairs, corporate reputation, governance and environmental and social responsibility strategies.

In addition to the NCGSR Committee, the Board has also delegated oversight responsibilities to committees for specific responsibility areas. For example, the Innovation Committee oversees our product innovation efforts and strategies that are critical to our harm reduction goals, as well as our efforts to reduce the environmental impact of our companies’ manufacturing operations and products.

The Compensation and Talent Development Committee oversees initiatives, programs and processes related to talent development and culture through regular updates from management.

These updates include the review of topics such as:
1. executive succession and advancement planning
2. employee engagement survey results and management’s responses to opportunity areas
3. progress toward our inclusion, diversity and equity (“ID&E”) goals
4. key workforce metrics on recruiting, retention, turnover and promotion rates
5. actions taken to protect employee safety, health and wellness

The Audit Committee oversees our risk assessment and risk management policies and practices and our compliance with legal and regulatory requirements.

Altria’s responsibility focus areas are integrated into enterprise planning, strategies and initiatives. For each focus area, we formed Steering Committees led by senior executives with accountability for strategic alignment of initiatives and investments, outcomes and progress toward 2025 goals. These committees convene regularly and are comprised of senior leaders from accountable functions, functional director-level employees and subject matter experts.

We acknowledge stakeholder expectations for transparent, decision-useful disclosures of our progress, and we took steps to further enhance governance of our ESG reporting by implementing improved processes for data and disclosure review, substantiation and reporting. An important element of this process is an ESG Disclosure Working Group with representation from Corporate Citizenship, Corporate Audit, Law, Finance and Corporate Communications. The ESG Disclosure Working Group is involved in the oversight and review of sustainability reporting and is focused on the accuracy and quality of our disclosure.
Management Oversight & Accountability

What We’re Learning

Since setting our responsibility focus area goals, our teams have learned a great deal and continue to evolve our approach to meet ever-changing standards and stakeholder expectations.

Increase Connectivity Across Focus Areas to Magnify Impact

We are aware of the intersectional nature of many environmental and social issues our focus areas seek to address. These intertwined focus areas require us to think differently about complex business and societal challenges, upskill our employees and engage experts in these spaces.

Equitable Harm Reduction - In early 2020, our materiality assessment revealed that the concept of equity was rising in importance to our stakeholders, and we reflected this importance in our focus area to Support Our People & Communities. As the national discourse on race and equity in the U.S. reached fever pitch later that year, we felt we were on the right track and were inspired to make sure we were taking a broader view – applying an equity lens across our other focus areas. We are exploring what it means to pursue equitable harm reduction – where a reduced-harm future is available to all smokers, inclusive of all demographic and socio-economic backgrounds. Research shows demographic disparities in adoption of smoke-free products and accurate understanding of relative product harms and nicotine risks. These barriers, left unaddressed, could stifle the momentum of responsibly leading the transition of adult smokers to a smoke-free future. In pursuit of our Vision, our scientists, engineers, product developers and consumer researchers are combining our deep knowledge of adult smokers, data analytics and behavioral science to better understand what would motivate and then help adult smokers transition to smoke-free products. We hope to utilize data and market insights to improve access to product information and choice of quality smoke-free products so that the benefits of the harm reduction efforts are realized equitably.

Total Social Investment - We have traditionally measured our companies' positive community impact through focused strategic charitable contributions and employee community engagement. We also recognize that other business activities and company resources can create additional social and business value. For example, increasing the diversity of our supplier base and engaging with our retail trade partners on inclusion, diversity and equity practices have not traditionally been measured as community impacts. As defined by Chief Executives for Corporate Purpose®, Total Social Investment (TSI) sums up all resources (operational expenses, staff time, and more) the company uses to advance the “S” in ESG efforts. This emerging framework has encouraged us to explore new ways to measure investments in the community, and we continue to investigate the best ways to track and quantify our companies’ broader impact.

Sustainable Product Development and Value Chains - As we work to advance our harm-reduction goals, we can also work to advance our environmental goals in parallel. For example, we’re investing in an expanded portfolio of smoke-free alternatives for adult smokers looking to reduce the harm of tobacco use. We’re partnering with new suppliers, business partners, etc., and we’re exploring new manufacturing processes, materials and technologies. As we develop our product portfolio, we can do so with an eye toward reducing the environmental impact of our companies’ products and packaging.
Continue to Gauge Stakeholder Understanding to Improve Engagement

As described earlier in this report, gathering our stakeholders’ perspectives to inform, aligning business practices and measuring and communicating our progress are fundamental to our responsibility approach. We are committed to continuous improvement. Since setting our 2025 Focus Areas and Goals, we have refined our focus area goal language to drive clarity. While the scope of our work remains the same, we have identified new and improved ways to communicate our progress across a variety of channels, including a more concise, direct expression of our 2025 goals.

Our reporting approach is now simpler, better designed to meet stakeholder needs and includes easily digestible and succinct two-page “snapshots” to provide up-to-date, relevant progress for each of our focus areas.

We also continue to expand our disclosures to increase transparency. Beginning in 2021, we’ve added a variety of new reporting vehicles to our public disclosure, including our Task Force on Climate-Related Disclosures report, an annual Lobbying and Political Activity Transparency & Integrity Report, our annual EEO-1 disclosure, a SASB Agricultural Products index (in addition to the Tobacco index) and our ESG Data Tables to make it easy for stakeholders to assess our progress over time.

Later this year, we will feature snapshots of our 2022 progress for each focus area. Continue reading for our 2025 goals, how our leaders are thinking about our focus areas and some 2022 progress highlights.

Establish the Integrated Infrastructure & Governance Needed to Accelerate Progress

Since our 2020 materiality assessment, we’ve reflected on the systems and processes in place to support our responsibility approach. We’ve expanded personnel and infrastructure to more effectively manage responsibility accountability across the enterprise, oversight of key initiatives, and transparent and accurate data collection and reporting. Creating Altria’s first Chief Sustainability Officer role demonstrates the increasingly important and growing impact of our corporate responsibility initiatives. The dual title and role of Senior Vice President, Corporate Citizenship and Chief Sustainability Officer emphasizes the integration of our responsibility as a corporate citizen and our commitment to stakeholder capitalism. We recognize sustainability has evolved beyond the traditional definition associated solely with environmental impact to creating long-term value for shareholders while making a positive impact as a good corporate citizen.

In order to lead this important work, we expanded our Corporate Citizenship function to increase capacity, capability and reach. In addition to Corporate Responsibility, Community Impact, and Underage Prevention and Cessation Support, the Corporate Citizenship team now includes Inclusion, Diversity & Equity and Corporate Communications – a recognition of these functions’ shared accountability to create long-term business value, shape Altria’s reputation and make significant cultural contributions through responsibility programs and communications.

Our teams continue to optimize the way we engage internally to align with best practices and collaborate more effectively. This includes the way our steering committees meet to govern our focus area progress and how our business teams stay connected to drive the important work. We’ve strengthened our internal responsibility data infrastructure, including selection of a new responsibility data collection and auditing software system.
Reduce Harm of Tobacco Products

Why it Matters
The use of tobacco products is a significant public health concern. To meet evolving adult smoker expectations and address stakeholder concerns, we need to continue to work to reduce the harm of tobacco products and develop a deep understanding of adult smokers’ mindsets, to more effectively and equitably transition smokers to potentially less harmful alternatives.

Goals
- Accelerate investments in innovation, science and regulatory support for new smoke-free product platforms.
- Establish harm reduction, not prohibition, as the proper framework for tobacco regulation in the United States.
- Provide access to expert quitting information for those who have decided to quit.

Developments We Are Monitoring
- Public health
- Human rights
- Equity issues
- Waste regulations

Executive Message

At Altria, our focus is on Moving Beyond Smoking™. We’re developing a portfolio of smoke-free alternatives, guided by science, to meet adult tobacco consumers’ evolving expectations. We’re also generating the evidence necessary to seek FDA authorization to market these products. After that authorization, we look forward to actively encouraging adult smokers to transition to them from cigarettes. We have focused our advocacy to be abundantly clear: we believe harm reduction – not prohibition – is the appropriate framework for tobacco regulation in the U.S. In support of tobacco harm reduction, we’ve engaged with FDA and policymakers on important regulatory approaches, including how best to address the damaging effects of nicotine misperceptions, the ineffectiveness and unintended consequences of prohibition-based proposals like a menthol ban, and the importance of enforcement so that all products available for sale have been properly authorized and regulated. We also successfully advocated for FDA to close the loophole for synthetic nicotine products, which threatened progress on both underage tobacco prevention and harm reduction for adult tobacco consumers. We believe FDA, the public health community and tobacco manufacturers all have a role to play in advancing tobacco harm reduction, and we look forward to continuing to do our part.

April 2023 marks 25 years of our commitment to preventing underage tobacco use. When we established our Youth Smoking Prevention department in 1998, youth smoking rates were 28.3%. Today, underage tobacco use is at the lowest levels in a generation. We remain committed to preventing underage use, and there is still more work to be done. Helping address critical business issues requires a variety of solutions and cross-functional collaboration. The incredible teams across our companies are continuing to invest in impactful evidence-based prevention programs and providing support for innovative technology solutions at retail. Our aim is for retail to be the most trusted place to responsibly sell tobacco products and hold ourselves to leading the industry in operating responsibly. Preventing underage use requires partnership from all stakeholders which includes effective, comprehensive federal regulation including exercising appropriate enforcement actions for manufacturers that fail to comply with regulations. In 2023, we will continue to advocate for these changes to FDA and key stakeholders to maintain the momentum on declining rates of youth tobacco use. I am proud of the progress we have made and the 25 years we have spent championing this business-critical work. I look forward to deepening our connection with our prevention partners and broadening our reach with responsible retail practices in the year ahead.

You do not need to look beyond your own community to see the growing impact of climate change across the globe. We’ve seen the effects on our operations, and we also know our companies and their products have an impact on our planet. Our teams are focused on understanding potential climate change-related risks, reducing our operational environmental impact and sustaining the natural resources we rely on to operate. Over the last year, we’ve been monitoring and preparing for emerging regulation and legislation that will ask our business to enhance our environmental disclosures and focus on minimizing the environmental impact of our companies’ products and packaging – including a focus on recyclability, sustainable materials and consumer waste. We see the growing global conversation on the importance of limiting deforestation and understanding the nature-related impacts on our business. Underlying our ability to contribute positively is our ability to be informed by strong and accurate data that helps us drive decisions that are aligned with science. We are focused on how best to enhance our data collection and analytics capability to better understand where we are and where we are headed. Clear and decision-useful data is a critical input in achieving and resetting some of our environmental targets. We anticipate achieving some of our targets early, like our 2030 100% renewable electricity target through our renewable Virtual Power Purchase Agreement. This year we’ll take a closer look at where we must increase our efforts and where we can set new targets to continue to push ourselves further.

Executive Message

Why it Matters
Climate change presents global risk, humans are the primary cause and inaction is not an option. We understand the effects our companies and their products may have on our environment, including climate change, changes to water quality and availability, and cigarette butt litter, as well as the effects changes in nature have on our companies - and the associated risks for our businesses.

Goals
- Manage climate change impacts and risks through science-based business practices.
- Conserve the natural resources on which our businesses and communities rely.
- Reduce the environmental impact of using our companies’ products and packaging.

The goals above are supportive of our progress toward long-term, 2030 targets to:
- Reduce absolute Scope 1 & Scope 2 emissions by 55%
- Reduce absolute Scope 3 emissions by 18%
- Achieve 100% renewable electricity
- Reduce waste sent to landfill by 25%
- Achieve 100% water neutrality

Developments We Are Monitoring
- Net Zero by 2050
- Regulators, policymakers and investors focusing on financial impacts of climate change

2022 Progress Highlights

- We signed our first Virtual Power Purchase Agreement for energy produced by a wind farm project in Texas that became operational in January 2023.
- We expect to achieve two of our targets ahead of schedule:
  - 100% renewable electricity by 2030
  - 55% reduction in operational greenhouse gas emissions by 2030

Continued to demonstrate environmental leadership with recognition from CDP Global, a nonprofit organization that runs a global disclosure system on managing environmental impact, for addressing climate change (A-) and protecting water security (A-) and improved our rating for addressing the drivers of deforestation (B)
At Altria, we believe sustainability is everyone’s job. That includes each person and business in our companies’ value chains from our tobacco growers to our retail and trade partners. We are focused on operating high performing companies while also delivering a positive impact on our value chains’ responsibility commitment and practices. Over the last few years, we have been on a journey to transform our companies through new technology, and improved data and analytics capabilities, which provides insights into our value chain that are helping us further refine and build upon our work with our value chain partners. We have championed inclusion, diversity and equity within and outside of our companies. In 2022, we recognized a growing awareness and interest in supply chain responsibility and risk management from our key stakeholders. In response to this important trend, we conducted a risk management assessment of our business-critical suppliers to optimize our working relationships and impact. We also have been focused on operational readiness and preparing future value chains, inclusive of new and diverse suppliers, for the smoke-free products in our development pipeline. This challenges us to think differently, to continue to evolve our risk management work to encompass these new suppliers and to increase awareness of our expanding global footprint. I am consistently impressed by the hard-working individuals who drive value for our premium brands through continuous improvement and partnership; I am excited for 2023 as they raise the bar, once again, to drive responsibility through our value chain.
